

IDENTIFYING A FAILED DEVICE IN A NETWORK

Abstract of the Disclosure

A failed device is identified in a network that includes plural devices. To begin, an attempt is made at communication with a target device. If the attempt at communication with the target device fails, it is determined if the target device has an active neighbor. If the target device has an active neighbor, the target device is identified as a failed device.

377942.B11

2025-12-14 14:30:45